

Child-friendly Cities?

AUGUST 20TH 4-7 PM
THE LORD MAYOR'S
RECEPTION ROOM
3RD FLOOR,
TOWN HALL HOUSE
KENT STREET, SYDNEY

(Access also possible by escalator from the City
One-Stop Shop)

Our cities are planned and built by adults for adults.....discuss!

Some, for instance those focussing on the global business role, would welcome that proposition. Others would see the ability to cater for the needs of its young as a necessary measure of a civilised community and see its city centres as valuable resources for all ages. This seminar seeks to give our young a voice and to consider cities from their perspective.

This meeting is a must for those of us with a role in planning or managing our cities but also for those with an interest in how our youngest citizens currently experience and are nurtured in our urban environment.

4.00pm
Dr Bob Solomon
Chairman AIUS (NSW)

Welcome

Clr John McInerney,
City of Sydney

Introduction, 'Children in the City'

School students

'My City - a childs-eye view'

Parents group

'Raising and living with children in the city'

Penelope Coombes and Jennie Mackenzie, People
for Places and Spaces

'Child and family-friendly cities: What matters?'

5.15 pm

Refreshment Break

Dr Paul Tranter, UNSW at the Australian Defence
Academy, ACT

'A Monster Problem or Child's Play? Peak oil and child-friendly cities.'

Panel session

Facilitator James Colman
The speakers will be joined on the panel by a Director of the NSW
Commission for Children and Young People, Stephen Robertson.

7.00pm

Close